BRIAN PANUSH began his career in construction by working for different firms during his summer vacation days of high school. In the '70s he made carpentry a full-time operation and in 1993, after several years of experience, Brian drew from his past and opened Panush Construction & Remodeling, Inc.

Today, the business has grown to include five additional employees, with Brian's wife, Lisbeth, serving as Vice President and Financial Manager. The work done by the company includes remodeling, additions, custom home building and some light commercial work. It has also expanded to include construction consulting and PVC membrane roofing and decking systems.

Over the years, Brian says his approach to the work has changed little, though, and he and Lisbeth run the company with the same attitude he's always held for the building industry. "It's an enjoyable business because we're creating, and that's always fun," he says. "Everything we do is different, and each project is unique in itself."

Brian's words speak true to the type of work he and his staff focus on, as they have completed award-winning renovation jobs in the past few years. This included the remodel and conversion of an early 1900s Victorian residence into a real estate office, earning Panush the "Remodeling Excellence Award for Historical Renovation" by the Olympia Master Builders in 2006.

Panush remains active with several affiliations, currently serving as a national director of the National Association of Home Builders and a state director of the Building Industry Association of Washington. In 1998 and 2002, Brian was also honored as Builder of the Year by the Olympia Master Builders, and has served as president of the OMB twice.

The high-quality achievements of Panush Construction & Remodeling looks to remain a fixture of their company policy, as they continue to work diligently on advancing their systems into supreme efficiency, always striving to please the customer and create the living spaces required for each individual.

Brian says this reflects the mission his staff holds whenever approaching a new project. "My objective is to give my client the product they want," he says. "We look for the client that wants good quality for a reasonable price."
